June 28, 1962

iam Howard Evans

l services for William Hows, 7239 N. Oketo Ave., were e 12th, 1962, at the Seurth Home with interment in the t in Chicago.

i was born on the Evans m southeast of Groton, Sept. the son of Ida Evans Bauthe late Wallace C. Evans. death of the father the fam-d to Groton about 1909, e children entered the public Howard graduated with the 1915 which will be rememcause the boys all enlisted in and served in world war 1. nday school teacher, Mr. Hank prepared his class of high e students for membership in byterian church before they ervice.

ing service he enrolled in the School of Business, then season at the Yellowstone Nark tourist bureau where an ttorney inspired him to con-law profession. He gradun the St. Paul College of Law nown as the Mitchell School in St. Paul) and opened an Breckenridge, Minn. He then th the U. S. Bureau of Em-Compensation and was lo-St. Paul and later Washing-C. A short time was spent F. B. I. Alcohol Tax Depart-Philadelphia, but he return-e Compensation Division of or Dept., and was located in and the last 15 years in Chi-few years ago he was a "25 year" pin for excellent by the Sec'y of Labor.

urvivors include his wife, e, two daughters, Joyce of City, Calif., and Carol Schaef-West Chicago and three grand-, his mother, Ida M. Bauman rdeen and his sisters Mar-Graham of Sanford, Fla., and Webb of Aberdeen.

nbed the Presbyterian church, ee and American Legion.

William Howard Evans

Funeral services for William Howard Evans, 7239 N. Oketo Ave., were held June 12th, 1962, at the Seurth Funeral Home with interment in the family lot in Chicago.

Howard was born on the Evans Stock farm southeast of Groton, Sept. 15, 1896, the son of Ida Evans Bauman and the late Wallace C. Evans. After the death of the father the family moved to Groton about 1909, where the children entered the public school. Howard graduated with the classs of 1915 which will be remembered because the boys all enlisted in troop K and served in world war 1.

His Sunday school teacher, Mr. Hank Sullivan prepared his class of high school age students for membership in the Presbyterian church before they left for service.

Following service he enrolled in the Mankato School of Business, then spent a season at the Yellowstone National Park tourist bureau where an elderly attorney inspired him to consider the law profession. He graduated from the St. Paul College of Law (now known as the Mitchell School of Law in St. Paul) and opened an