November 4, 1913

MARK TAYLOR DIES

The community was startled on Monday to learn of the death of Mark Taylor, who died on Sunday at his home at Chokio, Minn., from the effects of a carbuncle on the back of his neck.

Dr. Jones was called to see him and went to Minnesota on Saturday night, but was too late to be of any assistance.

The body will be brought back here for interment and funeral services will be held tomorrow at 2:30 at the Presbyterian Church.

Mr. Taylor lived southeast of here for many years, where he made a success of farming. Disposing of his interests, he moved to Minnesota a couple or three years ago. His father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Taylor, still live in Groton.

Mark was still a young man. On the occasion of his last visit to Groton he seemed well pleased with his new home, and all the world looked bright to him and his family.