November 14, 1907

TWO DEATHS

Unusual fatality has attended the Carl Voigt home this week. Mrs. Voigt's father, a man of nearly ninety years died on Monday and funeral services will occur today at noon, at James.

On Tuesday, Mrs. Voigt also succumbed to the disease with which several members of the family have been afflicted. Funeral services will occur tomorrow.

The ailment is said to be a form of the grip, but the fact that so many members of the family were stricken would seem to indicate some form of contagion.