DEATH OF MRS. EDDINS

News was received the first of the week that Mrs. H. M. Eddins had died at Chicago. Mrs. Eddins had been an invalid for a long time, afflicted with cancer of the stomach, and it was known that the end could not be far away.

The Eddins family made their home in Groton for about twenty years. Mrs. Eddins was an artist of ability, and possessed talents along many lines far in excess of that accorded the average individual. It is now thought probable that the ailment was of long duration, and may have done much to hamper a mind and life possessed of unusual natural capacity.

The younger children were with relatives in Chicago at time of their mother's death, and will be cared for by their uncles and aunts.
